occasion, could his wishes be granted. From the first, indeed, it had been seen that the young Napolean could not live long. Undoubted symptoms of the presence in his constitution of the seeds of that malady that had carried off his father, early presented themselves; and to these were added other symptoms too clearly marking him out as the prey for consumption. From being a handsome delicate boy, he had suddenly shot up before his eighteenth, into a tall, feeble, and sickly, though handsome young man. the constant care of the imperial physi cian. Towards the end of the year 1831, he became rapidly worse, and was obliged to abtain from his military exercises, and from all active exertion whatever. During the winter of that year, and in the spring of 1832, he lived at Schonbrunn, almost wholly confined to his chamber. It had been resolved to remove him to Naples, should it be possible to do so, in the autumn of 1832; but the disease had made such progress, that before that time the fatal result had taken place.

For many weeks he had been in grea pain, and incapable of any change of poposition, save that of being wheeled to a window balcony, overlooking the garden of Schonbrunn. Even this was at last beyond his strength, and stretched on his bed in great suffering he waited anxiously for his release. Maria Louise arrived from Italy only in time to see him die. It was on the 22d of July, 1832, and in the very room that had been occupied by his father on his famous visit to Schonbrunn, that he breathed his last. Some days after there was a funeral through the streets of Vienna, and the body of Napoleon's son was committed to the imperial vaults.

The people of Vienna showed much feeling on the occasion; the cholera had just been thinning their own households.

THE GOOD OLD TIMES IN VIRGINIA.

Under this head, J. A. Y., a correspondent of the New York Spirit of the Times, tells two or three very good stories, one of which is the following:

In those days lived old Ned Carev. Every one living here then recollected Old Ned-a frelicking old free darkey, who never let a muster, a cock fight, or in the construction of ertain railreads in the said a race pass without being on hand, if price by the act of 4th August, 1854 will be held at the undermentioned land offices in said state at the ter from my brother, stating that the physician deate love of such sports was what is now- periods hereinafter designated, to wit: a-days termed by the business part of mankind a great deal of cuteness, but disposal of the vacant lands within such sections

On a certain day a great muster was to come off at some tavern in the county of Henrico, and of course a cock fight or two. At the appointed time a good many persons were present, and among them Mr. M., a gentleman of the real old stripe, who had made a few ten dollar bets on the cock fights, and lost every one. He was commenting on his bad luck, when Old Ned was seen approaching, with a large bag thrown over his

- "Ch, yes, game as a panter, Massa

"Out with him, Ned; out with him." And Ned drew forth a large speckled cock, which to judge by his size, was a perfect bruiser. " What's the price, Ned?"

"Five dollars. Massa, an' cheap at dat, an' if any cock on dis ground kill dis cock, I gin you back de money."

The bargain was accordingly struck, and the match made for a fight. M. bet about the amount he had already lost, and the cocks were put into the ring. At the first touch of the steel Old Ned's cock give a most awful squall, and took a strong wing for the woods. M. was furious, while the crowd laughed up, with the application of some pretty hard "Didn't I tell you. Massa M." says Ned, if any cock here kill dat cock I give you back de five dollars. But dey cotch him fuss: and I neber seen any cock outrue ole Skewball in my life. Ya! ya!" M. wanted to be very angry, but it was no go; his anger was choked down by the uprorious laughter of the crowd that met him on every side and he was forced to enjoy it as a capital joke. Old Ned continued to frequent the race course | range twenty seven tili his death.

It restores to full vigor every delicate functien connected with that regeterious compound agency of matter and mind, necessary to the repreduction of human life. To persons of feeble museular frame, or deficient in vital power, it is recommended as the only means of communicating that energy which is necessary to the proper enjoyment of all the natural appetites, as well as the higher mental attributes. There are many, perhaps, who have so trifled with their constitutions, that they think themselves beyond the reach of medicine. Let not even these despair. The Elixir deals with disassess it exists, without reference to causes, and will not
